ANOTHER CHANGE IN RIBOT'S CABINET.

Startling Charges Against Archbishop Corrigan.

MUST THERE BE ANOTHER SHAKE-UP. A Feeling in Paris That the Cabinet Should Again Be Revised.

Panis, Jan. 11.-There is a strong feeling in the chamber of deputies, well as among the general public, that M. With regard to this statement it must be said that M. Burdeaux, Baihut and Granet absolutely denied that they had been the recipients of bribes and demanded to be heard by the ommittee in order to repel these accusations. These denials appear to have been accepted as satisfactory, and the fact that no further evidence appears to have developed against M. Burdeaux has been regarded as establishing the falsity of the charges.

The interviews in the morning papers from Bishop Hogan of Kansas City, Bishop Mc-Quade of Rochester, Father Lavelle of New York and Editor Conde Pallen of St. Louis on the recently revealed ecclesiastical "con-spiracy" moved the young priest to make a statement regarding the remarks of these Father Conway said: "I have read very care

During the night the republicans prepared a semorial to the governor signed by 64 members who had certificates of election from the state canvassing board certified to by the secretary of state, setting forth that they, a majority of two of the whole number of members, had partici-pated in the republican organization, and petitioning him to recognize that body as the legally constituted house of representatives.

This communication was taken to the governor at midnight. He was aroused and accepted the document, but told the committee presenting it that he had no statement to make. Among the signers to this document was Jas. Wilson, the independent member, whose position up to that time had been uncertain.

PERPARING FOR ACTION. At 7 o'clock this morning the members began to arouse themseives and to cast about for breakfast. Sandwiches and coffee were served in the cloak rooms and then began a Senate. The populists' plan for bringing things to an issue contemplated an important move at 10 o'clock, to which hour the senate move at 10 o'clock, to which hour the senate adjourned yesterday. The plan involved the recognition of the populist house by the governor and senate, which is ruled by a populist majority. This being done the populist speaker was to request the retirement of all persons not members of the house, including the members of the republican house. If the latter declined to withdraw voluntarily, then the governor was to order the adjutant general to lend his assistance in forcing them out, the latter being au-thorized to order out the militia to enforce his concurrent resolutions.

At 11 o'clock the committee reported that the senate had adjourned and had declined to receive them. Then the two houses lapsed again into a period of impatient waiting.

The populists at 11:15 adjourned their legislative session of Tuesday and began the legislative day of Wednesday.

UPSET THE POPULIST PLAN. The action by the senate in declining to recognize the populist house upsets the populist plan to force the house squabble to an issue. The developments up to this time have been kaleidoscopic in their changes, and there is no telling what particular phase of the situation the next turn of the wheel may present. Immediately after the adjournment of the senate the populist senators went into caucus to consider further the status of the two

It was decided that the senate had before it no evidence as to the legality of the organization of either house and that it could consequently recognize either. It was further determined committee should be appointed at this after noon's session to investigate the condition of affairs in the house, to consult legal advice and to determine, if possible, which house was or-ganized according to law.

The democrats in the house are trying to figure out some way to reach a compromise on the silver question, but there seems to be little promise of success. Some believe that if they could get a vote on the bill reported from the could get a vote on the bill reported from the banking and currency committee they could carry it through the House, but no one seems to have any hope that the bill or any other repealing the Sherman law can be got through the Senate, in view of the attitude of the silver Senators. Representative Cate of Arkansas said to a STAR reporter today that he believed that the bill reported from the banking and currency committee would pass the House if a vote could be had, but he did not see his way to a vote.

The Sunday opening hearing was resume

today by the special committee of the House on the world's Columbian exposition. Elliott F. Shepherd addressed the committee in favor of the gates being kept closed on Sunday. There were, he said, petitions asking for this preservation of the Sabbath signed by more than 25,000,000 of our people Was there ever an expression of public opinion equal to that before. Those who opposed Sunday opening would not address themselves to the proposition that Sunday closing was unconstitutional, because that would be a reflection upon Congress and the President, who had enacted the law. He then argued that the seventh day was ordained by the Lord as a day of rest and should be ob-served as a Christian Sabbath, which could not be done if men went to the fair to examine and study the apparatus there, as was claimed to be the advantage the workingmen would derive from it.

THE GARBAGE SERVICE. Dr. Hammett Has a Conference With the Commissioners

Health Officer Hammett, accompanied by his deputy, had a long and earnest talk before the ommissioners this afternoon with reference the garbage matter. The doctor said while he favored a daily garbage service upon a sanitary basis, he saw that a great deal of annoyance might arise from the fact that it would require just double the number of teams that are new required to do the work. There are, he said, great number of people in the city who really would not desire a garbage collector to call at their houses every day. Even now some notify him to call for the garbage only when they send word. He maintained that the key to the great problem of successful collection would be to make the garbage accessible to the collector. He was in favor of the Commissioners passing such a regulation, and believed that great good would follow. A MYSTERIOUS WARDRORE How One Well-Dressed Woman Seem Never to Wear the Same Gown Twice

From the New York Sun -At a reception one guest was the admired of all the men and the envied of all the women The latter were in despair over her gown. "It's of no use trying to discover her dress maker," they said, because all her dresses are imported. They talked about her always wearing eithe white or green and said she must have a fortune in those two colors. She had taken to the empire styles particularly and actually arrearages of taxes.

Mr. Warner, superintendent of charities, appeared before the committee on behalf of the bill to create a board of charities.

It is the same dress twice, and they were all so levely, too. There was the one she had on then, a green satin with a constant that fell from between the should square train that fell from between the shoul-ders and a white Josephine slip belted across the breast with a cord of silver. The sleeves the breast with a cord of silver. The sleeves were enormous puffs of green velvet. Her blonde hair and lovely skin completed the picture, and one woman actually went so far as to whisper to her, "Oh, do wear this dress again; it is so lovely." But she only looked mildly bored. Of course, ill-natured things were said, too; that her husband could not afford anything like it, and all that, but, at the same time, if her husband didn't they certainly couldn't if her husband didn't they certainly couldn't make up their minds who did, because she was apparently most circumspect. So she remained a mystery, and tonight a more levely one that

Now for the other side of it. She never had but one dress at a time and if you had jumped at her suddenly for a given gown she could not have furnished it. Her wardrobe consists of three or four great square trains, long enough to come from the shoulders if need be, and all lined. They are in estin, silk and count from the shoulders if need be, and all lined. They are in satin, silk and velvet. Some are white and some green. All the greens will go together, by the way. Then she has a lot of puffs for sieeves, some green and others white. She has any number up to five frocks that are made empire in one way and another. Two have trains enough of their own to go either with our without another train. Then she has off vards of ribbon, sash widths and narrower. She has embroidered pieces of various kinds and lengths and withs. She has a good deal of old lace, a shawl or so her mother bill and all amendments. This would be closure by vote of the House and not closure by means of a report from the rules committee. The free silver men believe that they are strong enough to prevent such a thing.

Mr. Bacon of New York is of the opinion that the embezzlement section of the statutes is not broad enough, and today he offered a bill amending it so as to provide that every president, director, cashier, teller, clerk or agent of any association who willfully falsifies any book, report or account of the association shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five years or more than ten years.
